- There was a radio station west of KRASNOYE SELO (30 06 E/ /59044'N). The framework of the so-called Technical Corpus was completed, but it was not yet furnished with machinery or equipment. Two barracks buildings were under construction near the road.
- 2. The area of the radio station was nearly 13,000 feet square and was surrounded by a wire fence. Various types of masts were set up; a system in their arrangement was not recognizeable.* However, there were two different groups of antenne masts, the one comprising four to six groups of masts of the first named type. Between both groups, with masts from 85 to 100 feet high, there were small masts, about 9 feet hith, on which insulators of pressed material were mounted ...
- According to Soviet soldiers, a Soviet army beam antenna station was under construction there,
- Besides the German PWs a detachment of about 60 soldiers under the comand of Col. VARSHAVSKY were employed for construction work at the station. 25X1A
